Biographical Note

Georgine Milmine (1874-1950) was born in Ontario, Canada, in 1874. According to most accounts, she was inspired by Ida Tarbell's reporting on Standard Oil in McClure's Magazine, and decided to write about Mary Baker Eddy in a similar fashion. She spent a number of years (most likely 1903 - 1906) interviewing and researching for what would become a series of articles, "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science" (later a book published in 1909), and turned in her materials and early drafts to McClure's, after which her involvement with the project was limited. Tarbell left McClure's in May 1906 prior to the beginning of the series. The articles were largely rewritten by staff editors including Willa Cather, who worked at McClure's for the entirety of the series (January 1907 to June 1908), Burton J. Hendrick, and Will Irwin.

Milmine worked for a time on the staff of the Syracuse Herald, editing its women's pages, and married its managing editor, Benjamin Welles, on August 22, 1905. She moved with him to Auburn, New York, when he became an editorial writer for the Auburn Citizen. Welles passed away in 1911 and Milmine married Arthur A. Adams, a prominent druggist in Auburn, on August 24, 1914. References indicate that she continued as a newspaper and magazine writer, but no other work of hers has surfaced. Milmine and her husband moved to Falmouth, Massachusetts in 1937, and Milmine passed away on August 27, 1950, three weeks before her husband.

Cather, Willa (1873-1947)

Willa Cather was born in Virginia, and moved to Nebraska with her family when she was four years old. At one time she wanted to become a surgeon, but after she graduated from the University of Nebraska, she began writing for newspapers following a lively undergraduate literary career.

After some time in Pittsburgh, she accepted an editing job at McClure's in 1906 and moved to Boston. While at McClure's, Cather edited the serial publication about Mary Baker Eddy by Georgine Milmine from December 1906 to May 1908. In 1908, she became managing editor and stayed in that position until 1912 when her book – Alexander's Bridge – was published. Alexander's Bridge was Cather's first credited book until The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science was republished in 1993. The book was previously credited solely to Milmine and published by Doubleday in 1909.

After leaving McClure's, Cather wrote books and short stories full time, and was an extremely accomplished and prolific writer. Her most famous works include, My Antonia, O Pioneers!, One of Ours (for which she won the Pulitzer Prize in 1923), and Death Comes for the Archbishop. Most of Cather's writings deal with life in the American West, and often have semi-autobiographical elements. Cather passed away in 1947, at the end of a long and distinguished career.

Hendrick, Burton J. (1870-1949)

Born in New Haven, Connecticut, Hendrick attended Yale University, continuing on there to receive his master's in 1897. After graduation he went to work for the New Haven Morning News. Within a few years, he had moved to New York and was writing for a number of publications such as The New York Evening Post and The New York Sun. In 1905, he was hired as a staff writer at McClure's, where his most prominent work was an exposé titled "The Story of Life-Insurance." In September 1912, Hendrick wrote an article for McClure's titled "Christian Science Since Mrs. Eddy," calling on his earlier involvement in editing the Milmine series.

In 1913, Hendrick left McClure's to serve as an associate editor of World's Work; in 1919, he struck out on his own as an extremely successful biographer. He received the Pulitzer Prize in 1921, for The Victory at Sea; in 1923, for The Life and Letters of Walter H. Page; and in 1929, for The Training of an American. He continued on to write several "group" biographies of businessmen and politicians, and was working on a biography of Louise Whitfield Carnegie, wife of Andrew Carnegie, when he passed away.

Irwin, Will (William Henry) (1873-1948)

A graduate of Stanford University, Irwin worked for a number of newspapers including the San Francisco Sun, the New York Sun, and then as an editor of McClure's Magazine from 1901-1907. He won acclaim for his coverage of the San Francisco earthquake of 1906, and was a war correspondent for the Saturday Evening Post during the First World War. He later wrote plays, novels, and corresponded extensively with Herbert Hoover. Irwin was married to the feminist author Inez Haynes Irwin (who published as Inez Haynes Gilmore) from 1916 until his death.

Peabody, Frederick W. (1862-??)

Peabody was born in Brooklyn, New York, and attended the New York Polytechnic Institute, then Columbia University. He received a law degree in 1888, and after passing the New York bar, moved to Boston. There, he married Anna May, daughter of a prominent Boston family; their marriage was a tumultuous one that ended in divorce in 1908 after several court cases and accusations that he had stolen and spent his wife's inheritance.

In 1899, Peabody was hired by Josephine Woodbury to prosecute a libel suit against Mary Baker Eddy. What began as a simple attempt to earn money and fame seems to have turned personal, and Peabody spent the rest of his life fighting bitterly against Eddy and Christian Science. He delivered the lecture A Complete Exposé of Eddyism or Christian Science: The Plain Truth in Plain Terms Regarding Mary Baker G. Eddy, then published his talk as a pamphlet in 1901. He delivered further lectures on the same topic, and went on to write two more books.

From 1906-1907, he corresponded with Georgine Milmine and Willa Cather, and a portion of the research and testimonies they used to write the McClure's articles seem to have come from him. Many of the accusations and assumptions he used in his lectures and writings re-appear in the McClure's articles.

In March 1907, Peabody joined in the "Next Friends" suit against Mary Baker Eddy as a junior counsel. He was in fact a moving force behind the entire suit, which accused Eddy of being incompetent to manage her affairs. The suit was dismissed in October 1907. Peabody remained in contact with Eddy's son George Glover, and was involved in the suit to contest Eddy's will in 1911.

Scope and Content Note

The Georgine Milmine collection documents research, writing, and correspondence related to a series of fourteen articles about Mary Baker Eddy that appeared in McClure's Magazine from January 1907 to June 1908 and the 1909 biography by Georgine Milmine titled The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science.

The bulk of the collection dates from 1903 – 1909, during the research, writing, and publication of the original McClure's articles. The early years primarily document the preparation of the articles, and the later years document public reaction to the articles, both favorable and unfavorable. There exists the possibility that some of the research material included in Milmine's notes was actually prepared prior to 1903 by Frederick W. Peabody, but no outside verification has yet been made.

The collection was generated primarily by Georgine Milmine as she set out to write a series of articles about the life and work of Mary Baker Eddy. In this pursuit, she took extensive research notes, both from library work and from personal interviews, kept a clippings file of newspaper articles, collected photographs, and retyped passages from Eddy's published writings. She eventually turned her research into drafts of articles, none of which seem to bear any resemblance to the final published articles. Her work also sparked a great deal of correspondence involving Milmine, various McClure's editors, and individuals writing to express approval, disapproval, or offer more information about Eddy.

The collection consists of five series, Series I, Correspondence; Series II, "The Life of Mary Baker Eddy and the History of Christian Science" Manuscript; Series III, Printed Materials; Series IV, Research Notes; Series V, Scrapbook.

Series I, Correspondence, 1906-1908

Series Scope and Content Note

The series consists mostly of letters written to Milmine (Welles) or McClure's magazine editors during the publication of the series beginning in January 1907 and ending in June 1908. Some letters suggest further avenues for research or contain stories about Eddy. Persons also write to correct inaccuracies in the articles or to state disapproval. Some of the letters begin just before the publication of the articles in McClure's but post-date the publication of an advertisement for the articles which spurs the offering of information. Earlier letters relate to Milmine's research. Several letters are anonymous and not dated. Bulk of the letters are copies made for Milmine by McClure's magazine.

The collection consists of several letters from Mrs. H. S. Philbrook. Between November 1906 and June 1907, persons connected to the articles such as George Tuttle, Richard Kennedy (1907 January 7), and Arthur T. Buswell (1907 March 11, 1907 April 9, and 1907 April 19) contacted Milmine and McClure's magazine. There are also letters by Alfred Farlow and one by Gilbert Roe inquiring about evidence behind the Milmine articles.

The correspondence is arranged chronologically. See index for listing of persons.
